From: Alan Danskin, British Library Representative
Subject: Revision of 9.8.1.3, 9.9.1.3, 9.10.1.3, 9.11.1.3, 10.5.1.3, 11.3.1.3, 11.13.1.3, 16.2.2.4, 16.2.2.9.2, B.1, B.11 to eliminate use of abbreviations for places

Summary Description of Proposed Changes

This proposal recommends two broad changes to RDA:

- 1) Replace abbreviations used to contextualise place names associated with persons, families and corporate bodies:
 - Place of Birth
 - Place of Death
 - Country Associated with the Person
 - Place of Residence
 - Place Associated with the Family
 - Place Associated with the Corporate Body
 - Location of Conference
 - Location of Headquarters
 - Appendix B.11 Names of Certain Countries, States, Provinces, Territories, Etc.

- 2) Remove the distinction at 16.2.2.4 between recording names of jurisdictions, contextualised by the name of the larger jurisdiction in parentheses, and names of other entities separated from the name of the associated place by comma space.

There are also a number of dependent changes, to remove references to B.11 and to identify and correct examples which use abbreviations of places.

Background

RDA contains several instructions which require the use of abbreviations in the names of places. The preferred list of abbreviations includes obsolete and ambiguous abbreviations.

RDA mandates two different methods of recording place names as contextual or qualifying information. The name of the larger place is recorded in parentheses if it is added to the name of a jurisdiction, but it is separated by comma space when added to other types of name.

For example

Newark (N.J.)
Jurisdiction

Newark, N.J.
Place of birth of sculptor Chakaia Booker

The use of commas to separate data elements is problematic and can result in ambiguity.

For example

Normanby (Redcar and Cleveland, England)

is recorded as

"Normanby, Redcar and Cleveland, England

and could be interpreted as a list of places.

At Chicago in November 2012, in response to 6JSC/ALA/19, JSC encouraged ALA:

"to work on further proposals for place names, including the elimination of abbreviations for place names and adding instructions for treating larger/smaller places as relationships"

The British Library discussed with ALA, who indicated that as it is not actively working on this we could proceed with a proposal.

The British Library has considered the impact on legacy data. On the basis of informal discussions with Gary Strawn and our own analysis, we believe the believe expansion of abbreviations is programmable, as Appendix B.10 is effectively a mapping. Irrespective of existing data, the changes could be applied in new RDA data.
