From: Kevin Marsh, ACOC representative
Subject: ~~Revision of RDA 6.27.1.2 and RDA 6.27.1.3~~ now Proposed 19.2.1.1.3

ACOC thanks the LC representative for preparing this proposal and supports the approach being undertaken.

The incorporated changes are largely agreed to and supported; the only hesitation is with regard to the final paragraph

If it is unlikely that the serial would continue without that person's or family's responsibility for the serial, do not consider the person or family to be the creator. In case of doubt, do not consider the person or family to be the creator.

ACOC believes the sense of the first sentence could be more clearly established by saying

If it is unlikely that the serial would continue without that person's or family's responsibility for the serial, do not consider the person or family to be the creator. In case of doubt, do not consider the person or family to be the creator.

Or alternatively

If it is unlikely that the serial would continue without that person's or family's responsibility for the serial, ~~do not~~ consider the person or family to be the creator. In case of doubt, do not consider the person or family to be the creator.
