Subject: Proposal on adding new elements, applicable to rare and old materials, to the RDA Toolkit, the corresponding new definitions to the Glossary, and the corresponding new properties to RDA Registry

Abstract

This document proposes to add 80 new elements and the corresponding glossary terms to the Toolkit, and the corresponding properties to the Registry.

Background

During its preparation of the implementation of RDA, one of the translators' working groups identified the lack of elements in the RDA Registry. These relationship elements are deemed to be crucial especially when creating bibliographic descriptions of old and rare materials such as manuscripts and codices.

The Issue

MARC relator terms, as they can be found on the website of the Library of Congress, include seven terms which are deemed to be very useful and frequently applied by cataloguers, especially those working with old and rare materials. These are the following:

compositor [cmt]

A person or organization responsible for the creation of metal slug, or molds made of other materials, used to produce the text and images in printed matter.

facsimilist [fac]

A person or organization that executed the facsimile.

printer of plates [pop]

A person or organization who prints illustrations from plates.

rubricator [rbr]

A person or organization responsible for parts of a work, often headings or opening parts of a manuscript, that appear in a distinctive color, usually red.

scribe [scr]

A person who is an amanuensis and for a writer of manuscripts proper.

type designer [tyd]

A person or organization who designs the type face used in a particular item.

typographer [tyg]

A person or organization primarily responsible for choice and arrangement of type used in an item. If the typographer is also responsible for other aspects of the graphic design of a book (e.g., Book designer [bkd]), codes for both functions may be needed.

woodcutter [wdc]

A person or organization who makes prints by cutting the image in relief on the plank side of a wood block.

RDA does not include corresponding elements, thus these terms, globally used as relationship designators by library cataloguers, cannot be mapped to relevant RDA elements. Solutions such as mapping “printer of plates” in MARC to “printer” in RDA cannot be deemed sufficient, because it is not a 1:1 mapping, since MARC relator terms include “printer” as well, which means that applying this solution would lead to loss of information. The same is true for “compositor” (when mapped to “platemaker”), “rubricator” (when mapped to “illuminator”), and “woodcutter” (when mapped to “engraver”). Additionally, there are no similar solutions for “facsimilist”, “scribe”, “type designer”, and “typographer”.

Considering all above, we propose to add these new elements, terms and properties to the Toolkit, Glossary and Registry.

For “compositor agent” the broader element is “printer agent”, its definition reads:

An agent who is responsible for manufacturing a printed manifestation that embodies text, notated music, cartographic image, notated movement, or still image content using a device that transfers ink or a similar medium to a surface.

Based on that, the proposed definition for “compositor agent” is:

An agent who is responsible for printing a manifestation by arranging and assembling individual pieces of text, images, or other visual elements into a coherent layout, typically for printing or digital publication.

Important note: in this case, we did not base the definition on the MARC definition quoted above, but created a new one, because in our opinion the MARC definition for “compositor” refers more to the “caster” than to the “compositor”.

For “facsimilist agent” the broader element is “creator agent of manifestation”, its definition reads:

An agent who is responsible for the embodiment of one or more expressions.

Based on that, the proposed definition for “facsimilist agent” is:

An agent who is responsible for creating a manifestation by executing a facsimile.

For “printer agent of plates” the broader element is “creator agent of manifestation”, its definition reads:

An agent who is responsible for the embodiment of one or more expressions.

Based on that, the proposed definition for “printer agent of plates” is:

An agent who is responsible for creating a manifestation by printing illustrations from plates.

For “rubricator” the broader element is “producer agent of unpublished manifestation”, its definition reads:

An agent who is responsible for inscribing, fabricating, constructing, or other method of producing, an unpublished manifestation.

Based on that, the proposed definition for “rubricator” is:

An agent who is responsible for producing an unpublished manifestation by being responsible for parts of a work, often headings or opening parts of a manuscript, that appear in a distinctive color, usually red.

For “scribe agent” the broader element is “producer agent of unpublished manifestation”, its definition reads:

An agent who is responsible for inscribing, fabricating, constructing, or other method of producing, an unpublished manifestation.

Based on that, the proposed definition for “scribe agent” is:

An agent who is responsible for producing an unpublished manifestation by making handwritten copies of manuscripts.

For “type designer agent” the broader element is “book designer agent”, its definition reads:

An agent who is responsible for creating a manifestation by being responsible for the entire graphic design of a book, including arrangement of type and illustration, choice of materials, and process used.

Based on that, the proposed definition for “type designer agent” is:

An agent who is responsible for creating a manifestation by being responsible for the design of the typeface used in a manifestation.

For “typographer agent” the broader element is “book designer agent”, its definition reads:

An agent who is responsible for creating a manifestation by being responsible for the entire graphic design of a book, including arrangement of type and illustration, choice of materials, and process used.

Based on that, the proposed definition for “typographer agent” is:

An agent who is responsible for creating a manifestation by being responsible for the choice and arrangement of the type used in a manifestation.

For “woodcutter agent” the broader element is “printmaker agent”, its definition reads:

An agent who is responsible for creating a manifestation by making a relief, intaglio, or planographic printing surface.

Based on that, the proposed definition for “woodcutter agent” is:

An agent who is responsible for creating a manifestation by cutting the image in relief on the plank side of a wood block.

We have not identified narrower terms to the proposed elements.

Impact statement

A more refined solution to describe responsibilities related to old and rare materials has a beneficial impact on users’ efficiency in finding relevant resources and information, as well as on the work of cataloguers who will be able to choose from a wider range of elements. As these are new additions, the integration of these elements into RDA Toolkit does not affect legacy data.

Adding these new elements will positively affect the work of implementers, who will not be forced to use other vocabularies, such as the one developed by RBMS, when mapping MARC relators. It will definitely help them convince cataloguers, especially those working with old and rare books, that RDA is globally applicable in libraries.

For legacy data, institutions will have to decide whether to implement changes retrospectively or not – as is always the case with any proposal that allows for more specific information to be recorded, human intervention would be needed to apply the new terms retrospectively to existing catalogue data. The recommendations bring RDA's terminology in line with long-established terminology in MARC 21, so it may be the case that some institutions working with RDA in MARC have already been using these terms. Those that have not, will have to make decisions regarding their legacy data.
