Subject: Decisions on Proposal on adding new elements, applicable to rare and old materials, to the RDA Toolkit, the corresponding new definitions to the Glossary, and the corresponding new properties to RDA Registry

The text below sets out decisions taken by the RSC at their meeting in April 2026.

RSC/TranslationsTLO/2026/1 was published on 20 February 2026. Written responses were received between 2 and 23 April.

In the Public Session of the April Meeting (RSC/Minutes/585-598¹ Item 93), there was wide-ranging discussion of the proposal. In particular, Examples Editor Jessica Grzegorski, who is also a member of the RBMS Policy Statement Writers Group stated “It is important that cataloguers are able to do what they were always able to do,” highlighting that the genesis of the proposal lay within the Translations Working Group’s noting that the terms rare books cataloguers across a number of language and cultural groups use every day.

Technical Working Group Chair Chris Holden asserted that the Technical Working Group saw this as a good proposal with a good global case. He was happy to welcome it, as the Technical Working Group could “accept that these elements are ‘crucial’ to the rare materials cataloging community and setline for the use of broader elements would lead to an unacceptable lack of specificity when it comes to cataloging rare materials. We appreciate that the proposal cites specific community feedback and points out that the adoption of these new elements will likely further the use of RDA in these communities. We also acknowledge that rare materials catalogers are the domain experts of these proposed elements, and so we defer to their judgement that these elements are necessary for the description of rare materials.”²

He drew attention to the Technical Working Group’s more general caution “against a creep of more and more specific elements and encourage communities to consider localized subtypes of elements for community-specific purposes. We would like to remind all RDA users that, if the Toolkit lacks a specific element, that does not bar a community from defining a local subtype that fits within the hierarchy of the Toolkit (many communities, for example, define an ISBN as a subtype of Manifestation: identifier for manifestation, even though there is not a specific element in RDA for ISBN identifiers). In the future, the Community Resources section of the Toolkit might be considered as a platform for documenting community-specific subtypes that don’t necessarily merit inclusion in the full Toolkit.”³

² RSC/TranslationsTLO/2026/1/TTLO

³ RSC/TranslationsTLO/2026/1/TTLO

RSC/TranslationsTLO/2026/1/EURIG expressed “a concern about adding elements to Base RDA (as opposed to Community Resources) for the benefit of one specific community after the end of the 3R project” and while they felt the rare materials cataloguing community “is broad enough and international enough to warrant addition to Base RDA” they asked for “guidelines explaining what sort of communities could be so privileged and/or which communities should lodge their extensions in the Community Resource area”. In response to a verbal restatement of this request from Ahava Cohen, Chris Holden responded that while he understood the perspective from which this was being asked, the answer was not really something that he felt could be enshrined in guidance beyond saying that requests for new terms should be coming from an international perspective, as the current proposal did. He referred to the Music community and the Archives community as clearly international in the same way that the Rare Materials cataloguing community is. He would not like to prescribe that only communities with, for example, IFLA or other international body representation, like IAML (the International Association of Music Libraries, Archives and Documentation Centres) could propose new terms. As Technical Team Liaison Officer he is always happy to reply to individual queries from communities that are unsure whether to enshrine terminology in local procedures or submit proposals for an addition to Base RDA. The Technical Team Liaison Officer is keeper of the RDA Registry and is supported by the Technical Working Group in considering queries raised about such issues from the wider RDA cataloguing community. He also highlighted the focus in the current proposal on consultation across different language groups and the focus on ascertaining use cases as opposed to simply requesting a list of MARC terms be added. Use case is always a major focus of the Technical Working Group’s consideration of new terms. He repeated Jessica Grzegorski’s statement that this proposal very clearly sought to continue to enable cataloguers “to do what they were always able to do”.

Education and Orientation Officer Elisa Sze stated that she does not come from a rare books background, but she felt that “it may be helpful to think about the hierarchy of the new terms.”

After hearing comments from some observers, RSC Chair Renate Behrens drew the Public Session discussion to a close in the interest of time and suggested that discussion continue in the Asynchronous Executive Session.

The RSC Secretary pointed out that there needed to be a clear set of recommendations on which voting RSC members could vote. While a revised proposal was one option, it may mean asking members of the wider community to review a large number of terms for which there was already approval from the RSC. An alternative would be to approve the terms that were non-controversial on the proviso that RSC/TranslationsTLO/2026/1 be swiftly followed by a proposal to deal with the new terms suggested in several official responses and the controversial terms within this proposal.

Between the Public Session and the afternoon of the final day of the meeting, the RSC continued to discuss the specific issues around some terms.

In the end, there was unanimous approval for TranslationsTLO/2026/1 as amended below on the proviso that it not be implemented until RSC/TranslationsTLO/2026/2 is drafted, discussed and decided.

With thanks from the Secretary to the Translations Team Liaison Officer for the amount of work he undertook in amending the original proposal throughout the discussion to keep it up-to-date with suggested amendments, RSC/TranslationsTLO/2026/1/Decisions sets out the changes that voting members have approved to the text of RDA, its Glossary and Registry.
